Ask the Motor Medics®
Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,

I have a 2014 GMC K3500 Truck with a 6.6 Diesel engine. I am on my second set of fuel injectors in 160k miles. Are there some better injectors I can buy for this truck so that I don't have to keep replacing them? They cost thousands to replace, and I don't want to keep having to do it. They are also telling me that the pump is starting to fail and that I should replace the entire system or they wont give me any warranty on the injectors.

Thank you, Rudy, in Okoboji Iowa.

Dear Rudy,

You have an expensive one there. Injector replacement is not uncommon on diesel vehicles but there are many preventive steps you can take to help. First off, use only very good quality fuel and use and additive every tank full. Yes, you heard correctly, every tank, not just now and then or in the winter. Not using any additive in one tank allows dry poorly lubricated fuel to damage injectors a little at a time until they fail. This is also very hard on the pump as well. Changing fuel filters regularly is also important as running with a restricted filter is just as bad as poor quality no additive fuel. As for injectors themselves, we have not seen any better units, but any injector will benefit from the afore-mentioned items. When the pumps fail, they can leave metal in the system which causes damage so replacing it entirely is often needed.

Take care, the Motor Medics.

Dear Motor Medics,

Our 2008 GMC Yukon needs an engine replacement. It has about 160k miles on it and has been using more and more oil every month. It is now up to three quarts per oil change. We have had a shop look at it and they say that this can happen to these vehicles and that replacement is the only option. It does not make any noise it just uses oil. It started about two years ago. We have done no repairs to it other than the regular 6k mile oil changes. We are not sure if it is worth the 10k they want to install a remanufactured engine.

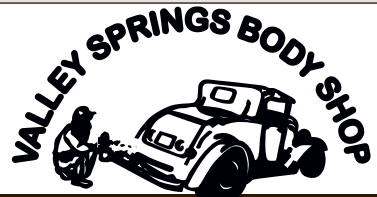

Thank you, Heather in Lake Havasu.

Dear Heather,

Before you replace the engine, if you have made no other repairs then it is safe to say that the driver's side valve cover has not been replaced yet. This cover contains the PCV valve, and a newer modified cover has been released just for this oil burning issue. You will need to buy one for the new engine and they are easy to install so it would be well worth it to replace it before replacing the engine to see if it stops burning oil. As for oil changes, 6k is way too long unless the vehicle only sees long highway trips. Also, look and see what these are selling for, so you know the value before replacing the engine.

Take care, the Motor Medics.
