Ask the Motor Medics®

Automotive Advice from The Under the Hood® Show

Dear Motor Medics,
I've been listening to your show "Under The Hood" on my local radio station and have heard a lot of talk about gasoline and changes that have happened to it over the years and some new ones coming that we have seen here locally involving octane changes. The fuel in our pumps has changed and we now have a lower octane rating than before. I have always just used the cheapest fuel when gassing up my car but after listening to you I wonder if I would be better served using something else. I heard you suggest the higher octane to a listener to prevent engine damage. Should I be worried about my car? I drive a 2006 Ford Taurus that's not a flex fuel vehicle.

David in Muskegon Michigan

Dear David,
Thanks for listening to Under The Hood and for reading the column. Fuel has changed and we are seeing a drop across the board in octane and prices all over the place. The first place to start is with your owner's manual because you want to know what the manufacturer of your car calls for. If they recommend a minimum 87 octane or 89 octane, then that is the lowest you should use to protect the vehicle. Using fuel with lower ratings than manufacturer recommended can cause spark knock which is potentially harmful to the engine and too high is a waste of money so always consult the car owner's manual.

Take care, The Motor Medics

Dear Motor Medics,
I own a 2011 Chevy truck and car. They both have an oil change reminder light that tells me when the vehicle needs to be serviced. I have noticed that the time of service for these two vehicles can range up or down as many as 3000 miles on a change and frankly it worries me. My dealership where I do all my work has told me that I should follow the reminder on the dash no matter what and that I don't need to change it earlier but that has been 9000 miles on the truck and 6000 on the car and that just goes against all I have ever been taught on my vehicles.

Charlie in Bowling Green Kentucky

Dear Charlie,
When we saw oil change intervals this high we got nervous too. The system takes into account things like engine temp, idle time, mileage and much more to determine change intervals so it's a "Smart System" but not foolproof. It can't tell what oil you use. Don't skip on the oil type. You need to use what is recommended by the manufacturer because that is what they base changes on. The factory recommended engine oil is made to last much longer than standard conventional oils and is formulated for long life. It doesn't have to be theirs but has to meet their specs. Using a cheap oil will reduce miles between changes and can affect your engine warranty.

Take care, The Motor Medics
